Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And never brought to min'?

—Robert Burns

There is greater encouragement for us in the least blessing we ourselves receive from God than in all the accounts we can read of the faith and experience of others.

—E. G. White

Dedication

His earnest Christian influence, tenderhearted, sympathetic understanding, and deep devotion to the highest interests of the student body have permanently enshrined Elder Peterson in the hearts of all.

We esteem him highly for his versatility and his patience as an administrator, counsellor and friend.

Because we appreciate his lofty character and emulatory leadership, we respectfully and lovingly dedicate the 1950

"ACORN" to President Frank Loris Peterson.

Religion must still be allowed to be a collateral security to Virtue.

Religion

Two primary objectives lie back of the activities sponsored by the Department of Religion in the Oakwood College. Stemming from a carefully planned and concentrated program, the first objective is calculated to help every student to reveal in his person and life's pursuit the impression of an inspired evangel of truth. Secondly, for students aspiring to the Ministry and related fields of service, the Department provides specialized training and limited experience.

Students from this department occupy positions of leadership throughout the nation and in overseas mission service. Among the most successful clergymen — Pastors and Evangelists — are students from the Department of Religion of Oakwood College.

History

J. J. JUSTICE
Instructor of History

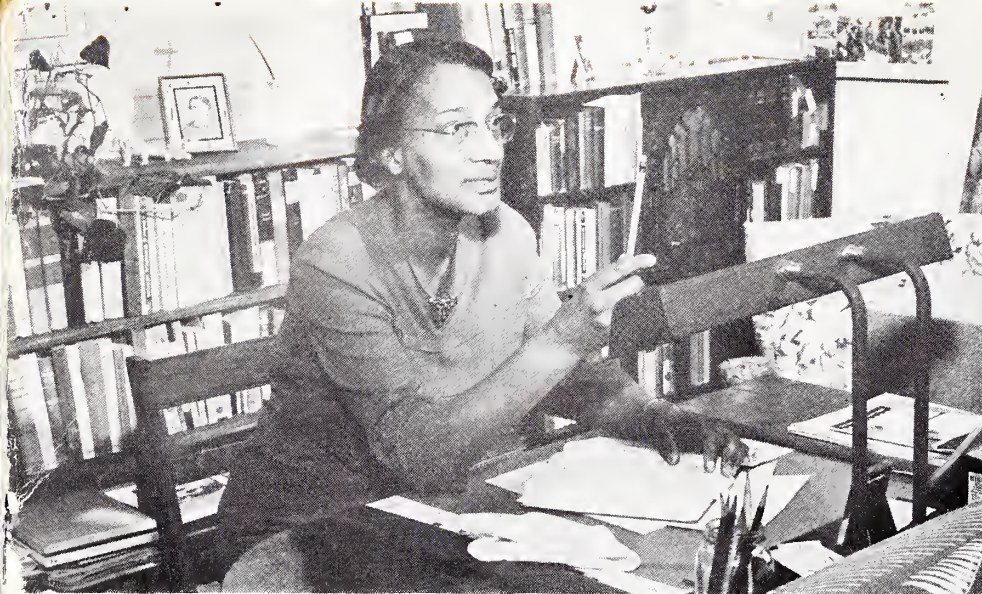

History, as the ground under the feet of all wise men, has assumed its place as one of the fundamental courses at Oakwood. Effectively conjoining the teaching and learning processes the Department of History develops the students' vision through the delineation of man's story preparing him to meet the problems of today's special orders with intelligence. In the upper biennium courses special emphasis is directed on independent study, research in historical problems and methods and the profluence of thought coupled with enthusiastic discussions bespeak the joy of scholarly minds.

In order to equip the student with a sound philosophy of life, the professors are constantly aware of two statements, namely, "The Bible is the most ancient and most comprehensive history that men possess . . .," and "The Bible reveals the true philosophy of history."

Director of Education

Education

Oakwood's Department of Secondary Education is truly in its infancy, yet it feels that its growth will be comparatively fast. At present a resourceful group of young men and women are matriculated as students working toward the Bachelor of Arts degree in Secondary Education or a Bachelor of Science Degree in the same field. Students pursuing this course enjoy the opportunities afforded for cultural and intellectual development. This department maintains a place of dignity in the esteem of both students and faculty. The invitation of the Secondary Education Department is: "Won't you come and join in the nicest work ever committed to man — Secondary Education?"

G. HUNTER, Professor of Romance Languages

"The man who speaks another language besides his own has another string to his bow."

With the fullest realization of the potency of this statement and an awareness of the opportunities open to potential language students in a modern world, the department of Romance Languages has very seriously devoted itself to the task of laying a thorough foundation in such mechanics of French and Spanish as will enable students to read, write, understand, and communicate their thoughts in these languages. By a study of the Literatures of the countries whose languages are taught, the aim is to make acquaintance with the most celebrated literary minds as well as give a knowledge of each country's civilization and nationality. It is very gratifying to note that at the termination of the present school year, six students in this department will have completed their majors, one in French, five in Spanish. Of these, four are 1950 degree candidates.

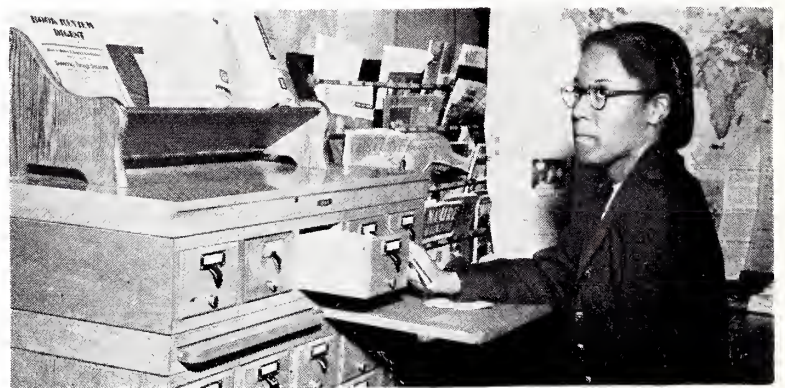

English

We have room for but one language here, and that is the English language, for we intend to see that the crucible turns our people out as Americans, and not as dwellers in a polyglot boarding house.

—Theodore Roosevelt.

E. B. DYKES
Professor of English

The English Department has for its objectives, first, the development of correctness and facility in the four phases of communication: writing, speaking, reading, and listening; and secondly, the fostering of appreciation in the student for the best and noblest in the great literary heritage of the world. Such training will not only make for the enjoyment of living but will contribute most vitally toward his rendering effective service in the Master's vineyard.

It is with a great deal of anticipation that his fast growing department looks forward to the new science building soon to be erected on the campus.

The importance of this department is seldom realized by individuals whose interests are focused on a liberal education. For the individuals in scientific pursuit, this department offers many challenging opportunities. Pre-medical and pre-nursing students are familiar with the merits as well as the needs of this department.

The enrollment and the supplies of the department have been on the increase and it is evident that new quarters will have to be provided to take care of this increase.

The Anatomy and Biological Science classes have long outgrown their present structure.

Notwithstanding the inconveniences, the classes are functioning well and making satisfactory progress.

Mathematics

"He who knows not mathematics

—Bacon

"It is a remarkable fact that the mathematical inventions which have proved to be most accessible to the masses are also those which exercised the greatest influence on the development of pure mathematics."

This department is making rapid progress under the capable tutorship of C. B. Gentry. The aim is to give every student a good working knowledge of every day problems by instilling in the students the correct principles of solving mathematical problems and equations.

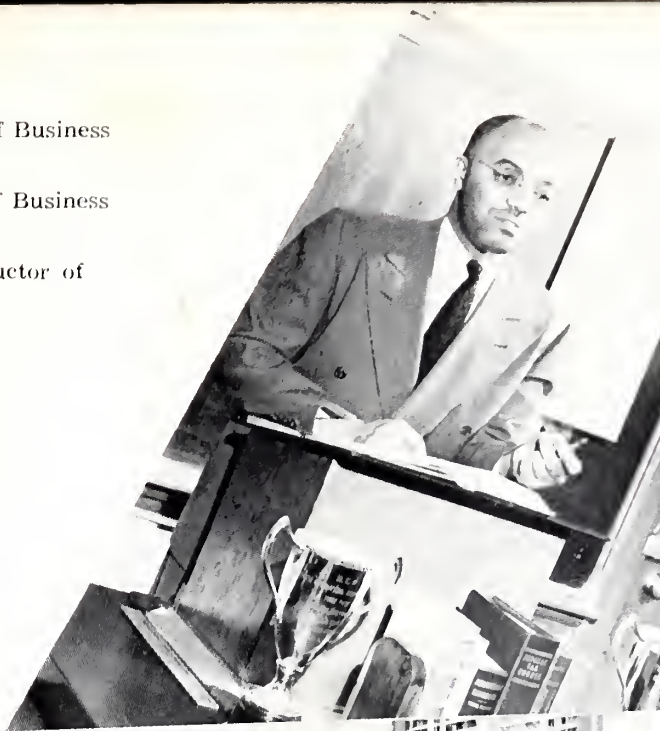

C. E. GALLEY, Professor of Business

C. A. PITTER, Instructor of Business

D. A. HENDERSON, Instructor of Secretarial Science

Commerce

Political and economic changes brought about by disturbances of World War II make it highly necessary that the businessman of today be well-trained and highly skilled. The department of Commerce at Oakwood College recognizes the challenge presented by the demands of present-day business and has geared itself to furnish the answer.

The main purpose of the department is to train Secretaries for duties in Conference offices, Managers for Book and Bible Houses, and Treasurers for Conferences and Schools of the denomination.

The course is planned in such a way that the graduates are prepared to give efficient service in any ramification of business which may offer opportunity in the secular field — private or governmental — as well as engage in business for themselves should they so desire.

This department has won two cups offered as trophies in the International Bookkeeping Contests during the two past successive years. A long-felt need in our educational program is being filled by this strongly developing department, and many students who are majoring in other fields of interest are including business courses in their curriculum.

—Thomas Hood.

Home Economics

The Oakwood College Home Economics Department offers courses in Child Care, Nutrition, Home Management, Family Relationships, Consumer Education, Dress Designing, and Textiles.

A tour through the department might prove revealing to some. The sewing laboratory is equipped with layout tables, storage space, and electric sewing machines. This room also provides working space for the class in Interior Decorating. Problems for this class take us over the entire campus. The foods laboratory, a work kitchen and dining room, is equipped with seven units which can take care of fourteen students who spend a large portion of their time planning low, medium and high cost diets. The Child Care class uses the food's laboratory for class in conjunction with Trailerville which provides an excellent opportunity for studying diets for young children and babies. The aim of the department is to give students a preparation for one of the highest careers, that of home making. It senses this aim and accepts the challenge as it plans and builds the department for greater achievements.

The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus.
Let no such man be trusted!

—Shakespeare.

E. JACKSON, Instructor of Music and Student J. MASTERS

Music

"If music be the food of love, play on."

—Shakespeare

"Musical training is a mere potent instrument than any other, because rhythm and harmony find their way into the inward places of the soul, on which they mightily fashion."

Plato

M. LINDSAY, Organ Student

I. BOOTH, Instructor of Music

This department of the college is progressing satisfactorily. The instructors consider and make the music-minded student aware of what is happening in contemporary society so that he will be able to help solve musical problems that must be confronted. Every student enrolled in the department is placed in an environment of rich and varied musical talents.

This provides outlet for outstanding ability and presents to the student the place music holds in Religion as well as the secular activities of life. The recitals and concerts given by The Music Department during the school year will long linger in the minds of the students.

Library

The library being always open, and the walks and reading-rooms about it free to all Greeks.

—Plutarch

Formal education applies its pattern to the mind, but only through books does the mind itself, enrich, deepen, apply, modify and develop those patterns in individual life fulfillment. There is no place where the intellectual tone of a college is more evident than in the library. Oakwood is anxious, therefore, that its library be used for study, and quiet dignified conduct is required of all who enter its portals. The administration strives to add worthwhile volumes with unrelenting regularity for circulation and for reference, and maintains subscriptions to over 200 periodicals and magazines. A group of well-trained, efficient assistants provides adequate library service and gives necessary help to students seeking information on topics for research. Attention is also given to building up collections of material by and about the Negro. A well-needed library building will be erected this year. Construction will commence during the Spring.

In every heart there is an inherent love for beauty. We are made so that we respond to the ideal and the infinite even though we cannot and do not fully comprehend either. The beauty that we seek is definitely found in art where the artist deals exclusively with things as they affect the human soul. Art is the interpretation of the great eternal realities of life. Throughout the ages philosophers and intellectual men have been unable to agree about what and who Christ is; but human hearts in every generation have united in love for this matchless personality in whom the ideal of all men, individually and collectively, is realized. Here at Oakwood we feel that the universal love of beauty is one of the resources of human life that Christianity ought to pervade with its spirit, and claim as its own. No wonder John Keats declared: "Beauty is truth, and truth beauty."

H. L. WRIGHT, Instructor of Industrial Arts, and

Industrial Arts

The Department of Industrial Arts has for decades been the right arm of this College. It offers theory and practical work in the following fields: Carpentry, Mechanical Drawing, Woodworking, Brick Masonry and Cabinet Making. Students who desire a degree in the above fields may receive their preparatory training here. Under the capable supervision of Professor H. L. Wright, one receives proficient instruction and guidance. The responsibility of this department is the general maintenance of all buildings on the campus. This affords great opportunities for student workers to obtain a practical and working knowledge of the trade. Truly this is the department where students become skilled workmen and learn to "build houses and inhabit them."

College Farm

The Agricultural Department of Oakwood College is developing very rapidly under the efficient direction of Professor R. Smith, recently appointed manager of the farm and instructor in Agronomy. The department has acquired some of the most useful modern types of farming implements and is doing a very commendable work in training young men in this vocation, as well as providing work for the defraying of part of their expenses. It is well recognized that agriculture plays an important role in our American Economic system, and young men should be encouraged to prepare for life by way of the land. A companion department is the College Dairy with a fair sized herd which is being increased regularly. At present the Dairy furnishes an ample supply of milk for the entire College community. Mr. M. C. Custard, who has charge of the Dairy, sees to it that there is a number of calves for the market annually, as well as the supplying of good wholesome milk. These two departments work hand in hand with the cafeteria in making provision for adequate vitamin supply to the students of the college.

"... and the dairy pails, bring home increase of milk."

College Cafeteria

Oh, God, that bread should be so dear,
And flesh and blood so cheap!

—Thomas Hood

B. B. ROWE, Matron

Three times daily, at 6:30 a.m., at 11:45 a.m., and at 5:30 p.m., students find their way from all parts of the campus to the Cafeteria, with a certain reluctance. It is from this "plant" that the "energy" for the day is derived. Under the supervision of the matron, forty-five workers spend long hours in the kitchen, and the food is eagerly consumed in less than thirty minutes. The dining-room accommodates about four hundred ninety students. The Cafeteria always keeps in mind the fact that "good digestion waiteth on appetite, and good food on both," and therefore invites all to come, eat, and really live.

M. HARVEY
Instructor in Printing

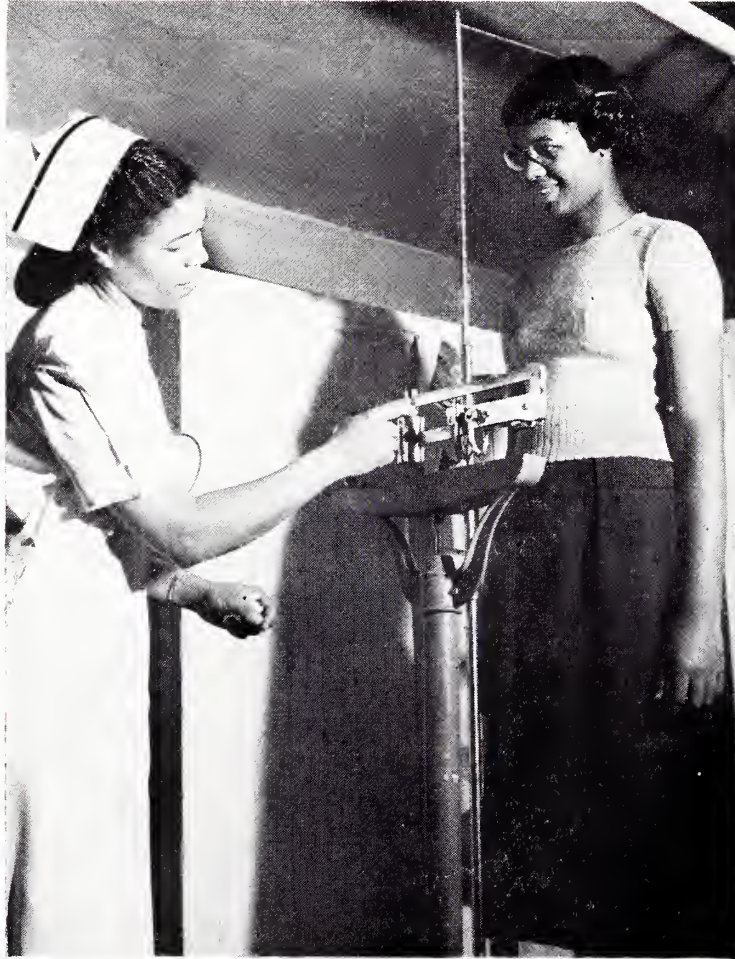

College Press

July 1, 1949, marked the beginning of the College Press as a separate Department under the direction of Professor Murray J. Harvey. From that date, it has been assuming its own obligations. Practically all of the printing for the college is done by the College Press, as well as a fair amount of commercial work. Enlargement in plant space and additions to equipment are being made constantly. Recent additions include new fonts of type, stapler, and other printing material, and previous to this, an automatic feed 12x18 job press was purchased. A course in printing is offered as an incentive to young people who might desire this field for a life-work, and also to provide future workers for the College Press.

Infirmary

H. MOSELEY, R. N., College Nurse

The sick student is never cured with two aspirins and a glass of water. In our neat little infirmary on the first floor of the Teacher's home, East Hall, is an office and adequate equipment for the treatment of all types of minor ills. Some treatments include the ultraviolet-ray, hot fomentations, massage, and minor throat treatments. Mrs. H. M. Moseley, R. N., is on call at all times and is ably assisted by Misses Carmela Nebblett and Reita Hundly. Whenever you feel the need of medical attention, drop in and you're certain to leave feeling much better than you did when you entered.

College Laundry

The College Laundry is probably the most thriving industry on the campus. It is progressive in that its service accommodates not only the students and faculty, but also the community and the city of Huntsville. New machines are being added constantly to keep the work-up-to-date. Many of the students find jobs in this department to help them with their expenses while in college. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Emerson, the managers, are doing a great work in teaching students to develop efficiency in this line. We are all looking for this plant to increase in the coming years.

M. L. EMERSON
Superintendent of Laundry

Engineering

H. KNIGHT, College Engineer

JOHN SIMONS working on motor in Engineering Shop

The Engineering department is a very active and important division of the college industries. It is under the direction of Hollis Knight, a recent graduate of the college. In conjunction with the Industrial Arts department, it takes care of the general maintenance of the campus utilities, which includes welding, plumbing, and electrical work. Thus, we see that there will be no dripping faucets, no short circuit, and no burst boilers, as the department keeps the campus fires burning. The department is responsible for the water supply, electric service maintenance, and heating systems of the entire compound. Due to the steady increase of work a jeep has been secured to accommodate the student employees in their daily assignments.

Administrative Officers

Manager

L. E. FORD, Business Manager

Since the publication of the Anniversary Edition of the Acorn, Oakwood has taken on several new aspects.

We now have a comfortable, up-to-date young women's dormitory, which consists of approximately 75 rooms, and will house one-hundred fifty girls. We also have a new Cafeteria with all modern equipment in the kitchen. There has been great improvement in the landscaping of the grounds, and the erection of a Sewage Disposal plant. At the present time we have a program on foot for a large dairy herd and cattle herd. Our farm has made progress to the extent that it has been selling hay and corn for the last two years. The College Store is enlarged and now is managed by Professor C. E. Galley, who is doing a wonderful job. Several other buildings have been added — the Industrial Arts Building, a temporary Science Building, and a new Laundry. This Laundry is doing a fine commercial business in the Huntsville area, and is increasing its volume of business every day. Several students have been able to work their way through college by working in the Laundry. Plans are being made for an expansion of our industrial facilities so that we will be able to aid more students in securing a Christian Education.

Treasurer

T. T. FRAZIER, Treasurer

Records and Finances both require constant vigilance and strict accounting. That is the responsibility of the treasury department. The treasurer's office requires the service of at least four individuals — a bookkeeper, a cashier, an accountant, and a treasurer. For the most part, students do the bookkeeping. In order to keep a continuous flow of trained bookkeepers on hand, one or two students are added to the office force each year. At the end of four years of practical experience gained while pursuing their college course, the students are quite thoroughly indoctrinated in the fundamentals of bookkeeping. They also learn the duties of a cashier by having to assume the responsibility of keeping in balance a petty cash fund, cashing checks, money orders, etc., and seeing that they are properly endorsed. The students learn how to make up bank deposits and replenish the petty cash fund.

Generally speaking, the head bookkeeper is responsible to the accountant, who in turn is responsible for the analysis and the proper set-up of accounts. Briefly, the duties of this department are as follows:

1. To make and keep a complete financial record of accounts with every student and teacher, such as:
(a) labor credit; (b) room, laundry, and board charges
(c) tuition.
2. To issue monthly statements to students and parents, as well as monthly financial statements to the Board of Trustees.
3. To make up semi-monthly pay rolls for teachers.
4. To keep an accurate record of all equipment and supplies.
5. To receive, disburse, and hold in trust all funds of the institution. Regardless of what your present or future plans are, you should give some study to proper business procedures. The Oakwood College business department extends to you a cordial welcome.

Registrar

Registration day does not begin and end the activities of the Registrar. Procedures in the Registrar's Office cover a wide range of activities. Some have felt that when registration days are over, there is little of importance to do until the days arrive for the recording and sending of grades to parents, but a brief insight into the Registrar's work will prove the contrary.

First of all, the Registrar is secretary to the Admissions Committee; therefore, this office makes the initial contact with every student whether he is a returning student or a new student. This includes sending catalogues and answering all inquiries, planning and carrying out registration procedures, filling out and mailing enrollment blanks to the Veterans Administration office for all veterans who register.

Other duties include:

1. To prepare class and room schedules.
2. To prepare adequate reports for the denomination, the state, the U. S. government, and other organizations.
3. To maintain clear cumulative records of enrollments according to geographical locations, records of grades, and attendance records.
4. To determine grade eligibility and student classification.
5. To prepare inter-school transcripts for the transfer of students.

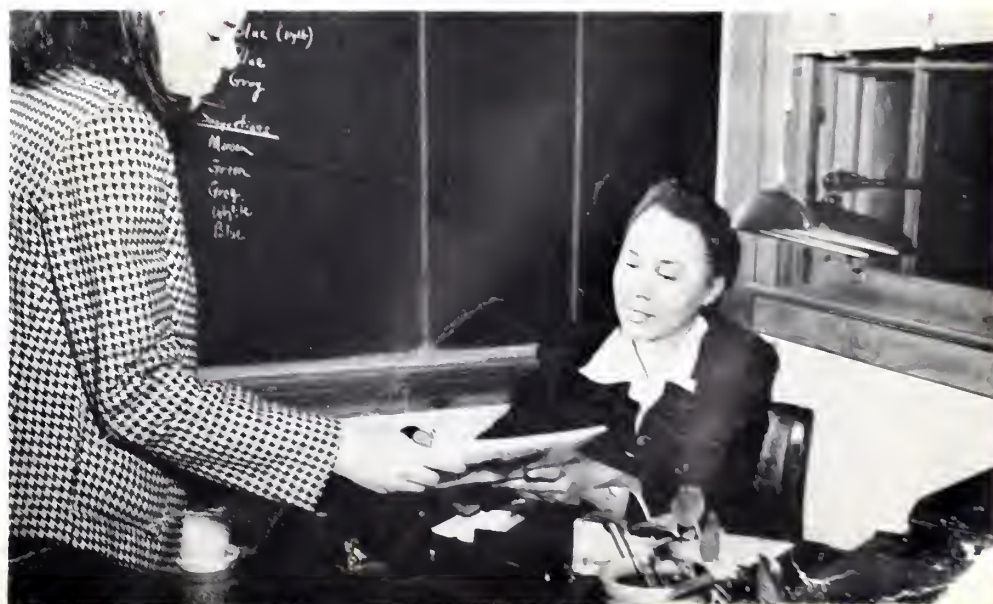

DOROTHY SMITH—
Mailing Catalogues

6. To prepare and distribute to parents periodic reports on the scholastic standing of students; also the preparation of honor rolls.
7. To prepare a folder which contains personal and scholastic qualifications of the prospective graduates.
8. Besides administrative officers, who are constantly making inquiries which call for study, students come merely to ask "What is my grade point average?"

By spending one day in this office, any visitor would be definitely impressed with the multiplicity of opportunities for real work and the advantages in office training which are afforded part-time student assistants.

United Student Movement

The United Student Movement of Oakwood College has gained an important place in the activities of the student body. No extra-curricular activity is of greater importance, for the Movement involves every student, and demands the support of every Oakwood College Student and Faculty member. Knowing that self-government is the best government, the Movement has, aside from the executive committee, a Faculty-Student Council to work out the problems facing the students. It also has a Committee whose duty it is to govern the social activities of the College, and it has proved an asset to the institution with its contributions. The publication of the "Spreading Oak," and the College annual, "The Acorn," along with the regular business of the association, afford many students an opportunity to take their places in worthwhile activities. The officers and all the branch committees of the organization are going the limit to make Oakwood College one of the best institutions in the South.

Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And never brought to mind?
Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And days o' auld lang syne?

Organizations

Alpha Tau Delta

Alpha Tau Delta, the Commercial Honor Society, was organized April 21, 1948. The society is open to any business major or minor above Freshman classification who has received the necessary hours and grade point average in business subjects. In addition to the scholarship requirements, invitation to join the club is based on the individual's character and service to the Department of Commerce. ATD aims to encourage a higher scholarship average in the department, to foster good citizenship on the campus, to develop leadership, to encourage research by students, and to promote efficient preparation for greater service in the field of business and the work of the Advent Movement. During its two years on the campus Alpha Tau Delta has made itself felt in student life by contributing to its own department, by bringing to the college family talent of outstanding worth, and by giving annually a scholarship to the business student who closes his Freshman year with the highest scholastic average. Since the organization of the society six of the nine charter members of the club have graduated and are now successfully employed. The three remaining charter members are members of the 1950 graduating class.

This is a society for every male student enrolled in the college. The purpose of this organization is to promote a more perfect development of the spiritual, intellectual, social and cultural pursuits, and to ensure the blessings of liberty and progress to ourselves and our successors. During the year the EPSILON

SIGMA presents many benefit programs in order to make our campus homes more comfortable and college life enjoyable. In the past two years, this society has converted the former Dining Hall into a beautiful and well-arranged Lounge. They have also secured a fountain for Irwin Hall, the college men's home.

Here is a group that leads in campus politics, athletics, scholastic averages and social activities. Pledges are chosen as they come, whether they are potential Einsteins or just men keeping above average, but the membership is restricted to Junior and Senior college male students with some outstanding work done in one or two fields; thus, the most outstanding men of the college are under its banners. The members of KAPPA MU DELTA maintain representation in most of the campus activities, the College Choir, United Student Movement, Alabama Singers, and The Acorn. Each year they take the lead in social activities. Many times during the year, you may see the brothers together in the Dining Hall for dinner around lighted candles and listening to informal after-dinner speeches. Many of the ladies can recall the breakfast that was held in the Irwin Hall Lounge, really an affair of distinction. These social functions, along with banquets and formals, are only some of the many ways this organization is building campus spirit. KAPPA MU DELTA encourages scholastic standing by checking on each brother to see that he keeps ahead in his studies, because this is the source of leadership. The alumni of Oakwood College that have been members of the KAPPA MU DELTA, are now holding outstanding positions in the field. When one looks at this group, one sees the future leaders and a valuable asset to their Alma Mater.

MOTTO: "HONOR, FIDELITY, AND COURAGE"

The Gamma Sigma Kappas have united to develop lovable traits of young womanhood and Christian character. The organization aims to give each member the opportunity to expand, develop, and exercise her ability to serve actively and effectively in all the varied situations that life offers. The goal of the organization is Achievement. After ending a successful school year, it is a pleasure to look back upon what the club has accomplished to better Oakwood College. The members of the club not only work faithfully with other clubs to promote worthy projects, but also find time to provide wholesome recreation for one another.

TURNER C. BATTLE, III

The A

Oakwood College feels justly proud to be able to place before you the ACORN. Within this volume is the story and picture record of events, friends, teachers, visitors, and everything that has made the past school year a reality. The 1950 ACORN has aimed to highlight the most important activities of the year, in the hope that it will waft sweet reminiscences in the years to come of the happy days spent on the campus during 1949-50. Turner C. Battle, the Editor-in-Chief, has been a student-teacher at the College for several years, and views college life from two perspectives — that of student and that of teacher. From his analysis of college life and organizations, he has been able to weave a web of loveliness around this volume that makes it more than a picture book. The success of the ACORN must be attributed to the untiring efforts and excellent co-operation of the staff; but without our able advisor, Professor C. A. Pitter, the job would have been a more difficult one. Under his direction the staff was willing to sacrifice hours of study, recreation, and personal appointments to put in hard work, often extending into the late hours of the night in an effort to meet the printer's deadline. The staff has endeavored to present a worthwhile representation of life at Oakwood College that should enhance school spirit and a kindred interest in all the divisions of the College. We are happy to send out to you the ACORN for 1950.

Spreading Oak

The spirit and enthusiasm of Oakwood College is reflected to its readers by the Spreading Oak, official organ of the United Student Movement. The circulation touches nearly 40 states in the union. The

S. O. offers opportunity for students with journalistic aptitude and ability to develop their talent by reporting events and contributing articles to the publication. On that day in each month on which the paper is ready for circulation, nothing can deflect the attention of every campus citizen from eagerly reading the

Oakwood Chamber of Commerce

The Oakwood Chamber of Commerce was organized in 1945 by Professor C. E. Galley, head of the Oakwood Commercial Department. The objectives of the Chamber are to contribute toward the advancement of business education, to promote leadership within the department, to improve the caliber of business students, and to provide a medium through which the students might work toward a more progressive department. During the past five years, the membership of the department has increased rapidly, and now embraces approximately 100 students who are majoring or minoring in Business. Recently the Chamber of Commerce terminated an equipment campaign and presented an A. B. Dick electric mimeograph machine to the Commercial Department of the College. The instructors in the Oakwood College Business Department are working through the Chamber of Commerce to instill into the mind of the student the fact that "Christian principles are the best basis — the last word in economics."

The Veteran's Organization has launched many profitable campaigns which will long be remembered by the College. Among the recent campaigns is the giving of a scholarship award to a student in the College. The student receiving the scholarship award was ushered into the Truth by Brother Earl Howard, a veteran. Among the members of the organization are men who have served in all theaters of the Armed Forces, participated in many war campaigns, and one who was a prisoner of war. Brother Rothacker Smith, the only prisoner of war in the organization, is not only a professor at the College but also the club sponsor. The Veterans Organization hopes to continue to press forward to the mark of the high calling of Jesus Christ.

For a number of years the Missionary Volunteer Society has sponsored the Progressive Classes as one of its activities. Directed by Milton Nebblett, this group of Volunteers have met the prescribed requirements of the Master Comrade Class. The Class members derived the most pleasure from meeting their nature requirements. The early morning hikes over Oakwood's one thousand acres; star-gazing under the Southern sky; and tree and bird identification, all contribute to the romance of studying God's great out-of-doors. They also do first-aid, bandaging, hydrotherapy, and the other phases of home nursing.

THE TEMPERANCE SOCIETY

Among the many organizations at Oakwood College, the Temperance Society occupies a place of prominence. The organization seeks to develop an enlightened public opinion which, by voice and pen and vote, should demand of contemporary law-makers the complete eradication of the liquor traffic. This group, in believing that alcoholic beverages and tobacco are not only harmful to the individual but also detrimental to society, promises with God's help to abstain from all intoxicating beverages and tobacco in all its forms. Each member pledges to do what he can to combat the evil effects of the liquor traffic by all available means. They constantly seek to recruit signers to the total abstinence pledge.

Pan American Club

To foster a closer relationship between foreign and American students of the College, is the reason for this club. The greatest objective of the club is to give concrete information to students and teachers about the opportunities for advancement in all branches of educational and missionary work outside of the United States. This club is also the source of first-hand information concerning travel for tourists in many foreign countries. Membership in this club has not been limited to students and teachers from the Americas, but from all parts of the world. The members come from the Philippine Islands, India, Nigeria, Barbados, Puerto Rico, Republic of Honduras, Egyptian Sudan, the Bahamas, Sierra Leone, Guatemala, Trinidad, Liberia, Cuba, Haiti, Jamaica, and many other countries. Each year they foster banquets at which different kinds of native foods are served and one can feel as though one is in one's own country.

This is one of the fastest growing clubs on the campus and as its motto, has chosen: "Excelsior" and as its aim "To the Stars though the heights be steep." Progress, we know, will be steady and sure.

Colporteur Club

This organization is designed to develop in Christian young students a desire to go out from this institution each summer and earn scholarships while placing truth-filled literature into homes. The scholarship will enable them to continue their Christian education the following year. The aim of the club is to uphold Christ in every endeavor. The Southern Union Conference sponsors a Colporteur Institute each year, giving sound instruction in the fundamental principles of good salesmanship. This work is to prepare each member for the service in this world and the world of the hereafter.

Future Teachers of America

The Anna Knight Chapter of the Future Teachers of America is one of the prominent clubs of the college.

It is the only club that has membership with a national organization, that being the NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION. The college will long remember the Education Week that this group presented. They have always had outstanding educators to address the institution on these occasions,

Dr. Eva Hayes of Atlanta University, Dr. F. S. Hutchins of Berea College, Ky., and this year, Dr. F. D.

Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, Alabama. With this as a background, the club has been able to reach their objectives: "To develop ideas, to enrich the spirit of the college life, to advance the interest of the teaching profession, to promote the welfare of children, to foster the education of all Seventh-day Adventist youth, and to prepare for leadership." It is a tradition of the club to give a scholarship each year to a worthy Academic senior who, upon graduation, endeavors to follow teaching as a profession. This club has been one of the working bodies to secure funds for the erection of a new Education building, which we trust will soon be constructed.

Alabama Singers

This organization, comprised of male voices, was organized in 1931 under Professor Joseph Dent, and became the "Alabama Singers" under Professor O. B. Edwards in 1935, and has since travelled under that name, directed by Professor O. A. Troy, and Professor C. E. Moseley, Jr., successively. When one hears this group sing, one is moved to tears, laughter, or divine inspiration. They specialize in Negro spirituals, arranged by the director of the organization, Elder C. E. Moseley, Jr. Only a select group of men comprises the membership, and that by special invitation.

Members of "The Alabama Singers" do not receive class credit for participation in the organization — they sing because they like to sing, whether it be the sounding the marine high C, or the ponderant depth of low F. With the singing of hymns, ballads, anthems, folk songs, classics, and Negro spirituals they have thrilled audiences from California's West Coast to New York's eastern seaboard including colleges, high schools, the Kiwanis Clubs, private families, and uncountable thousands of listeners over the air.

College Choir

Playing an important part in the cultural, and religious life of Oakwood College, is the College Choir. Aside from singing to aid the religious services of the institution, they present the Handel's Messiah annually during the Yuletide Season. Standard a capella works and anthems, works of modern composers, and Negro spirituals, especially arranged for the choir constitute their repertorie. Each Sabbath, at the eleven o'clock service, more than fifty members unite to swell their voices of praise to God in song. One of the most outstanding events of the year is the Spring Concert given by this highly skilled group. The permanent membership of the organization is selected by the director, Dr. Eva B. Dykes, after satisfactory auditions.

Any person who is connected with the group must attend all rehearsals and respect all the regulations.

The objective and aim of the College Choir is to train each member to sing well. Dr. Eva B. Dykes who is director of this group is not only accomplished in the field of English but also in instrumental and vocal music.

Science Guild

The Oakwood Science Guild was organized for the purpose of creating a greater interest in scientific studies; of effecting improvement in the Department of Science; and of promoting a greater interest in science for scientific-minded students. In the past few years the organization has conducted many interesting scientific lectures, debates and open forums. It keeps the student body well informed on the latest happenings in the world of science, all the way from amoebae to the Hydrogen Bomb. The social aspects of this club are well known because they present many enjoyable events during the year that brighten the social side of college life. This organization, because of its versatility, is indeed an asset to our campus.

Oakwood College Seminar

The Oakwood Seminar is greatly beneficial to the Department of Religion, for under careful and authoritative guidance it approves correctness, rectifies awkwardness and error, and confirms the Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of man. The purpose of the Seminar is to promote a better understanding of old and new religious philosophies, and to provide a deeper insight for problems peculiar to the ministerial experience. Especially does it aid the future minister by familiarizing him with some of the different problems in religion which may confront him after graduation. One of the following topics would be analyzed in a typical evening session: "The Palestinian Question," "Health Reform," "Reasons for Rebaptism," "Love, Courtship, and Marriage," or "Christmas, Should We Celebrate It?" The influence of the Oakwood College Seminar has helped some of the most outstanding clergymen and missionaries in the denomination. Elder C. E. Moseley, Jr., is sponsor of this organization.

International Relations Club

The aim of this club is to study the conditions of the world's present social orders and compare them with the past. It is an asset to any person in the college who is interested in keeping abreast of the latest happenings in the world. At many meetings guest speakers give lectures on different topics in the field of thought. Many who have given these lectures either have been natives of the countries about which they speak, or have visited or lived in them for sometime. Thus, the individual connected with this group is kept in contact with most world happenings and how they affect the native and his attitude toward the environment in which he is placed. The general objective of the International Relations Club is to create a sympathetic feeling towards all countries, nations, and races of our world. The local objectives of the club is to be of profound help in building up higher scholarship among the students in the History Department. Each year a cash prize is given to the student that has written the best term paper in the department. In the past years the club has been instrumental in improving study conditions of the college by donating funds to purchase additional volumes for the library. The International Relations Club is one of the largest working bodies on the campus.

General Activities

Memories

Now-a-days our memories of Oakwood are based upon stories, poetry, songs, and photographs. No longer can we participate in vespers, hikes, and campus dates or re-live the wonderful scenes of those days, — scenes that have fled swiftly into the past. College days have gone like a robe, dropped from the shoulders of a dancer in some flashing roundelay. Their memories creep slowly and quietly through our minds regardless of where we are or what we are doing. Through each heart a streak of laughter echoes or from our eyes tears revealing the glory of Auld Lang Syne moisten our cheeks, but we wipe our eyes and before our vision, clear and bright are the friends, classmates, and teachers of yesterday, all full of beauty, strength, and power. As we turn the pages of Oakwood's family album, let us allow our minds to wander over the stages of our school-days of yesteryear. Recall those memories of classmates, socials, movies, parties, clubs, hikes, and warm friends; they are all before us as new as if they had happened yesterday. We will realize as never before that the real Oakwood with its squirrels, rolling lawns, and beautiful surroundings is only a whisper set to a swaying melody and sung from the familiar voices of her followers. These voices belong to those that sat in the vespers, participated in campus activities, longed to be home, shared in hopes of a greater tomorrow, and pledged to be true to dear ole Oakwood. Now that those days have gone, we, along with friends and relatives, must sit in silence letting our hearts and minds wade joyfully in this pool of memories, hear the voices of our friends and loved ones, see the vari-colored leaves fall one by one to the ground, eye a little squirrel glide from tree to tree, or join a group on the way to classes. Remember, these scenes have all gone, but we can still see the familiar faces of those who make the silhouettes of our memories.

“Dorm” Life is one of the best parts of college routine, compounded of regimented food, of bull sessions, of underground friends which now and then come to the surface like a streak of lightning. This life is most active in the evenings when groups gather in rooms for a brief chat. This affects even the most pious individuals, and often these persons are sounding away like new trumpets. It means fads that spread life wild fire through the dorm and die out in a week; it means using the peanut butter knife or cooking choplets in the cooking room, having dates and comparing notes, or borrowing soap. Dorm Life is regulated by bells and clocks and "don't do this" or "don't do that." It is corsages, formals, picnics, cold floors, and six to ten people in your room when you want to study. It is looking out of the window, daydreaming of "far away places." It is a rush to the Parlor to see who is singing. It is a reception room full of dates on Saturday nights and Sunday evenings and someone yelling from the first floor to the third. It is the hungry rush for food or impatiently waiting for mail. We always look for the new tomorrow and yesterday is always the same, but it is "Dorm" Life and we love it.

Work - Play - Leisure

Youth with swift feet walks onward in the way
 The land of joy lies all before his eyes;
 Age, stumbling, lingers slowly day by day,
 Still looking back, for it behind him lies.
 Fail not for sorrow, falter not for sin,
 But onward, upward, till the goal ye win!

—Frances Anne Butler

College Church

"LET ALL THE PEOPLE PRAISE THEE."

No student who has passed through the portals of Oakwood has ever lost the memory and the inspiration of the church services in the college chapel. Long after they have ceased to reminisce upon the exciting afternoon games and evenings of recreation or the stunning problems in mathematics and baffling exercises in English, the haunting mists of tune from the college choir and the venerable, inspiring, and satisfying word "in due season" will be wafted down memory's lane like a whisper of love, reminding them that the journey is almost done. The college church seeks to train the members to be "workers together with God," by taking an active part in all the annual campaigns, and make their goal a harvest of souls withal.

The Junior Department of the Oakwood Sabbath School has set as its goal the salvation of the "lambs" of the fold. This department of the Sabbath School is sub-divided into three separate groups—the Junior-Primary division, the Kindergarten division, and the Cradle Roll division. Each division has its own leader and separate corps of workers. The total membership is approximately one-hundred. The Oakwood Sabbath School serves a dual purpose. It provides practical experience in Sabbath School work for the students. In striving to point the youngsters to Christ, they are drawn closer to Him themselves; and by utilizing the evangelistic possibilities for children and youth in the Sabbath School, we are safeguarding the "Church of Tomorrow."

Oakwood College Station

The Oakwood College Post Office became an official branch of the Hunstville Post Office in March, 1948, and was given the title of "Oakwood College Rural Station." Like most of the regular branches, the "Oakwood Rural Station" gives six day a week service to its patrons. Mail goes out daily, and the branch renders the additional service of mail delivery on holidays. Students and community residents may purchase stamps, postal cards, stamped envelopes, and money orders from the post office, as well as send registered mail, C. O. D., special delivery, and parcel post shipments. In fact, the services are as varied as would be found in any of the regular branches. Although the number of patrons served by this station is only about 500, the Oakwood

College Rural Station's volume of mail is comparable to that of other stations which serve a wider area. During a recent month, it collected 5,531 pieces of mail, and delivered 9,937 items. Employees of the post office are living up to its motto—unqualified service to our small community.

RETROSPICERE

Written in anticipation of the reminiscences of the Class of '50 thirty years hence.

How our hearts thrill with warmth as we sit in retrospection,
As we ponder o'er our college days—just three decades ago.
We were carefree, blithe, indifferent, with not the least
"suspicion"
That life was full of troubles, heartache, pain and woe.

Remember the Library, and the old college bell,
How on Halloween night, it rang loud and clear?
Remember in winter how the "Oakwood" rain fell
From morning to night on the days dark and drear?

What experiences we had in the Ingathering Campaign
As we worked with a will for the cause of our Lord.
We labored, walked, and struggled, and never did complain;
We worked for the victory of a heavenly reward.

Remember the ruts in the old Oakwood road?
We bumped along over them in our fancy school bus.
The bus turned over and spilled all its load,
And the students crawled out all covered with dust.

On Oakwood's one thousand acres of sod
We had many gentry of worth.
There was Dave and his auto named the "Rod"
He constantly filled us with mirth.

Remember the Spreading Oak battle and strife?
It certainly was hard to save.
Collins and Nukes gave it new life—
Brought it back from the brink of the grave.

The dear old "Rec Hall"—what fond memories it brings;
Oh, the hours we spent there in sport!
We had marches, games, and community sings.
We even went there to court.

Ah, those good, old days we can never recall.
Three cheers for the girls of Cunningham Hall!
Three cheers for the fellows—stalwart, upright, and thrifty!
A six-gun salute to the Classmates of Fifty.

—Gwendolyn Jones

In the following pages of this annual, you will have the opportunity to glance at the Oakwood Academy with its fine staff of teachers and energetic students.

This Academy is one that we are very proud to present and introduce to you. Its faculty has dedicated their lives to the training of youth for the service of God. The students are a very outstanding group of young people who have come to Oakwood Academy for training that will enable them to carry this Gospel of the kingdom to all the world.

BERNICE ROY, Assistant Editor

Academy

From Our Principal's Desk

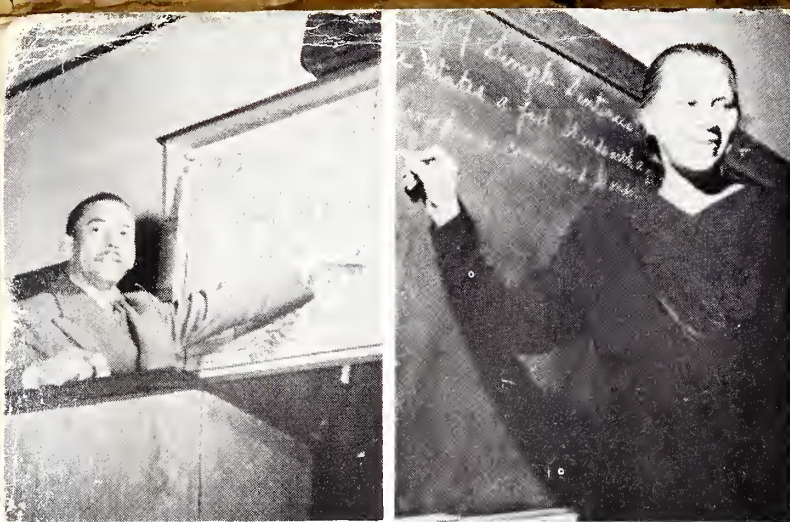

Someone has said, "Education is the apprenticeship of life." In this process of education, the academy years are important ones. Mastering your academy work completes the first necessary step toward a useful career — where one can prove to oneself and to others that one has the intellectual ability to succeed in a higher course of study. The world needs you. And the first objective of Oakwood College Academy is to teach and inspire the youth to consecrate their lives and talents to work for God. That you drift not along unaware of your potentialities, we demand the best of you, realizing the need for the full use of your talents. Remember

"Learning by study must be won:

'Twas ne'er entailed from sire to son."

To prospective students, we extend a sincere invitation to join us for another pleasant year!

MRS. S. A. BRANTLEY, B. A., M. A.

Academy Faculty

We are very proud of the members of the Academy Faculty. We are not only proud of them because of their achievements but because they are a part of us.

The staff consists of the following:

Mr. John Beale, B. A., Instructor of Bible.

Mrs. F. L. Peterson, B. A., Instructor of History and English.

Mr. Emerson Cooper, B. S., Instructor of Chemistry, Biology, and Mathematics.

Miss Wilma Minisee, B. A., Instructor of French and English.

This is the group which helps us to aspire to the greatest heights that can be attained.

Academy Editor

Serving as the Academy Editor of the Acorn is none other than Miss Edythe Marie Young.

Her home is Pasadena, California. She is a member of the graduating class of 1950 and is also Valedictorian of this class. Having a beautiful low voice and a cultured talent of speech, she was chosen as class orator. Her smiling face has brought joy to many on Oakwood's campus, and we are convinced that she will do likewise when she becomes the nurse that she has long dreamed of.

Science Club

All Academy young people are eligible to join the Academy Science Club whose aim is to delve into the mysteries of the unknown.

Teachers of Tomorrow

Temperance Society

To be temperate and to inspire others to be temperate in all things is the aim of all Temperance Society members.

In Our Dean's Home

A friendly chat with Dean Wade.

Taking a glance into one of the dormitory rooms we find a group of young ladies enjoying an evening of study together.

Here we view the young ladies of Henderson Hall in their evening worship enjoying a very beautiful selection rendered by the charming Academy Sextette.

POTTSTOWN PENNA

ELDER J. H. WAGNER, President

ELDER M. S. BANFIELD Treasurer

Pine Forge Institute, nestling in the beautiful Manatawny Valley, forty-four miles from Philadelphia, offers the three-fold purpose of education; the development of character in a Christian atmosphere, teaching the dignity of labor by actually performing ordinary and specialized tasks and working towards the restoration of the image of the Christ-like in man.

The academy is co-educational and operates upon the approved general scheme as recommended by the General Conference educational department of S. D. A.

The natural environment is conducive to study and the appreciation of the handiwork of God.

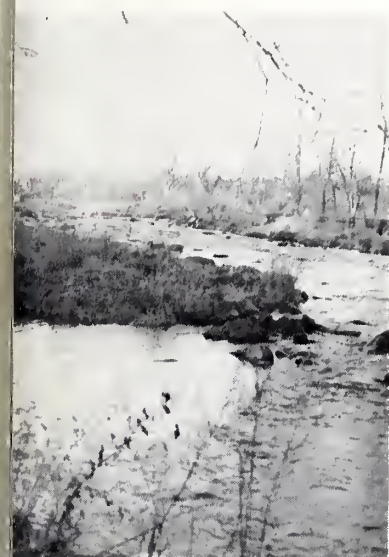

Pottstown, a thriving community, is just five miles from the school and bus service is available.

Give your child the training that fits him for service in the Master's vineyard.

Make application now. Address all communications to:
